Siri like apps for Android: Best Alternatives There are some features of iOS devices that are top notch and Android users would sometimes wonder if we would ever get to have them too. In this case, Siri is that feature. Now, you will get to have a Siri like apps for Android devices with these apps we found. Now, let's get started! Read on for more detailed features about these voice assistants. 1. Google Now – Free Google Now- Siri like Apps for Android When it comes to who has the most data stored on you, Google is the detached champion. And why is it? Because it gathers information from Gmail, your browser, the ads you click on, and many more sources. So why not put this information to good use? Google Now strives to help you by turning into a virtual personal assistant - don't worry about grocery lists, appointments, and even movie suggestions! Siri like Apps for Android Siri like Apps for Android Key Features: Voice commandA-Z app listApp Suggestions With this app, you have one of the most effective Android virtual assistants at the command of your voice. Most devices with an OS later than Android 4.1 will have Google Now pre-installed. However, you can update it by installing the Google Now Launcher. Just by clicking the button down below, you can do this. If you want to read more on Google Now, we suggest you read our guide on how to use it. 2. Robin – AI Voice Assistant – Free Robin- Siri like Apps for Android Robin is a lightweight and compact digital assistant app for Android. The app is extremely fast in booting up and becomes ready to use in no time at all. The app also comes with a peculiar interface, which makes it seems low impact too. Tap on the icon and the app will pop up with a transparent background that shows you your app drawer. This can be a little distracting for those with colorful and eye-catching icons on their drawers. The app performs well even in light traffic. Standard features are all very well implemented, but texting is really something special. The app can recognize a lot of different accents as well. However, the features set compared to the first app on the list is a bit limited. Not that it's a bad thing, but we would've loved more options. 3. Voice Assistant: DataBot AI Voice Assistant-Siri like apps for android The most entertaining virtual assistant for Android is Assistant DataBot! Similar to Jarvis, this AI responds to your inquiries about topics you are interested in by speaking. Your assistant's integrated apps and services return to you photos, voice searches, and multimedia presentations. While you travel, work, study, play, or unwind, use your personal assistant. It will quickly search for the information or audio you seek. Featured Image A voice assistant is like your own genie: Your wish is its command. For example, you can use it to open navigation apps while you drive. This way, you're keeping both hands on the wheel and focusing on the road instead of your screen. As long as you speak clearly, it will do exactly what you want. Tap or click here for five ways to help your smart assistant understand you better.Luckily, your iPhone or Android comes with these smart assistants built-in. Just say "OK, Google" or "Siri" to trigger them. Without further ado, here are voice commands for Siri and Google Assistant you'll use again and again.Our content queen, Allie, loves this feature. She tells her phone, "OK, Google, show me pictures of Nova." Just like that, she can admire photos of her beloved dog, Nova.Even if you don't have a pet, you can make great use of this voice command. Just know that this trick only works when you've already backed up and organized your pictures through Google Photos. Tap or click here for 20 easy ways to organize your collection in Google Photos. Privacy, security, the latest trends and the info you need to live your best digital life. Once you go through the trouble, though, you're richly rewarded. You can see specific photos — and filter them by date or device name. Check out this Google tip for inspiration:Source: GoogleYou can also use Siri to search for specific pictures in the Photos app. This makes finding your photos incredibly convenient. You can filter images by:PeopleObjectsActivitiesDateLocationYou can even combine those parameters. For example, you could say, "Show me photos of last Halloween" or "Show me photos of Nova from last March."2. Remind me of ... This next tip is practically the definition of a life hack. It's so simple: Say, "Hey Google, set a reminder" or "Siri, remind me." Then, tell your phone which specific reminder you want later on.For instance, you could say, "Hey Google, remind me to call Kim at 2 p.m. tomorrow." Or you can say something like, "Siri, remind me to pick up milk at 3 p.m." If you're a forgetful person, you'll love this tip. Tap or click here for a shortcut to automatically send birthday texts.3. How long until ...Maybe you're having a conversation with friends and aren't sure when that new movie is coming out. Or you want to find out how long until Christmas. You can answer your question without pulling up your phone's browser.Just say, "Hey Google, how long until Christmas?" or "Siri, how long until 2022 is over?" Either way, you'll get your answer.That's not the only helpful tip you need to know. You can also ask Siri or Google Assistant for your estimated time of arrival. This built-in safety feature helps you focus on the road while driving. Find out how long until you arrive by asking, "What's my ETA?" If you want more travel safety tips, we've got you covered. Tap or click here for Kim's latest travel checklist.4. Take a screenshot, hands-freeScreenshots are great for sharing anything from a recipe to a funny meme. They're also helpful reminders for appointments and grocery lists when browsing recipes online.You can take a screenshot simply by using your voice. Just activate Google Assistant through the app, start it with a button press or say, "Hey Google," and then say, "Take a screenshot."You may need to check your settings if the command isn't working. Open Settings and go to Apps & notifications > Advanced > Default apps > Assist & voice input. Then turn on Use screenshot.Have an iPhone? Just say, "Hey Siri, take a screenshot." It will be saved to your camera roll.5. Search your appsYour voice assistant can interact with apps. On your iPhone, say "Hey Siri, launch (name of app)" to open up the one you want to use. You can also say things like, "Hey Siri, get me a ride with Uber" or "Hey Siri, pay Jim $5 with Venmo."On your Android, you can say, "Hey Google, open Dunkin Donuts," or go further and say, "Hey Google, order coffee from Dunkin Donuts." Try similar commands like "Hey Google, where is my Walmart order?" or "Hey Google, play Frank Sinatra on Spotify." "On Android, supported apps include, but are not limited to, Snapchat, Discord, Etsy, MyFitnessPal, Mint, Nike Adapt, eBay, Kroger, Best Buy, Postmates and Wayfair.6. Wipe its memoryYou may accidentally trigger your assistant with a word that sounds alike. If you say something that sounds similar to "Siri" or "Hey Google," it may perk up its metaphorical ears. Luckily, Siri and Google Assistant both make distinctive noises when they've been activated. If you want to stop Google Assistant from recording the rest of your conversation, say, "That wasn't for you." This also deletes whatever it just recorded from your history.You can also tell Siri, "That wasn't for you," when it turns on accidentally. However, Apple hasn't officially said whether this phrase wipes your previous recording from its memory.7. Light it upWhen it's dark and you're trying to read a menu or make your way down a poorly-lit hallway, you don't want to fumble with your phone to find the flashlight. Say, "Turn on the flashlight." It works for both Siri and Google Assistant. Just say the wake name first to make sure they're listening.If you're a Harry Potter fan, you can say "Lumos." It references the spell Harry and his friends use to light up their wands. Say "Nox" to turn the light off.You may also like: Smartphone tricks to never miss an important call or text notification again
